Description

Located in Newport, Tennessee, this 3,509-acre mountain property offers expansive views of the Great Smoky Mountains, Douglas Lake, and the Tennessee Valley. The land features diverse terrain, mature hardwood forests, and natural water sources, including Sinking Creek, North Fork Bogard Creek, and multiple waterfalls. Centrally positioned between Knoxville, TN, and Asheville, NC, and near Pigeon Forge and Gatlinburg, the property is well-suited for resort development, mountain lodges, recreational use, or conservation efforts. With multiple public road access points and a well-maintained internal road system spanning over 10 miles, it is both accessible and ready for future projects. The land supports hunting, hiking, outdoor recreation, and timber management, offering a range of possibilities for development or private use. Whether used for a personal retreat, eco-tourism venture, or large-scale project, this property provides a unique combination of natural beauty, privacy, and accessibility in East Tennessee.
