Whether it's morning coffee, evening sunsets, or watching the seasons change across the Appalachian ridgelines, this outdoor living space sets the tone for the entire property. Located in the secluded community of Del Rio, Tennessee, this 12.71-acre mountain property offers privacy, natural beauty, and a true escape into the countryside. Surrounded by rolling hills, mature hardwoods, and abundant wildlife, the land reflects the quiet, untouched character that makes this region of East Tennessee so desirable for both recreational and residential use. The home features approximately 1,680 square feet of finished living space plus an additional 840 square feet in an unfinished basement, offering excellent potential for expansion, storage, or future customization. The interior layout includes three rooms upstairs with a full bath, along with one main-level room that also includes a full bath--creating flexible options for guests, multi-generational living, or rental income. Warmth and comfort define the living spaces with a cozy gas log fireplace in the main living room, perfect for relaxing winter evenings and mountain nights. Downstairs, the unfinished basement includes a wood-burning stove, adding rustic charm, supplemental heat, and additional potential for future finished living space. In addition to the standout front porch, the property also includes a second covered porch, providing multiple outdoor spaces to enjoy the surrounding mountain landscape, shade, and privacy throughout the day. A key advantage of this property is the availability of high-speed fiber internet, a rare and valuable feature in a private mountain setting. This makes the home well-suited for remote work, streaming, or operating as a short-term rental such as an Airbnb. The location also offers convenient access to nearby mountain destinations, including the historic town of Hot Springs, North Carolina, known for its natural hot springs, Appalachian Trail access, and outdoor recreation. Additional nearby destinations include Newport, Gatlinburg, and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, offering a strong balance of seclusion and accessibility. Del Rio, Tennessee is well known for its peaceful rural atmosphere, scenic mountain terrain, and proximity to public lands, rivers, and forested recreation areas.
