Description

Storybook architecture, a mountain backdrop, and an acre of land to make it your own. Tucked inside Abingdon's Foxfire Estates, this distinctive Tudor-inspired 1989 home combines the charm of a storybook cottage with the space and functionality of a much larger home. Set near the end of a quiet street, this 1.06-acre corner lot offers the kind of space and flexibility that is increasingly hard to find, with county taxes only and no HOA.

Inside, you'll find three large bedrooms, two and a half baths, two separate living spaces, a dedicated laundry room, and plenty of storage throughout. The two-car garage contains an additional heated and cooled flex room, ready to become a home gym, studio, office, hobby space, playroom, or whatever suits your needs.

Upstairs, the expansive primary suite includes an oversized extended closet and an adjoining bath wrapped in a mauve-pink palette, complete with matching fixtures and tile. The vintage color story brings plenty of personality and fits right in with today's renewed appreciation for colorful, character-filled bathrooms.

The home has also seen a thoughtful round of updates in 2026, including newly refinished wood floors, new plush carpet and interior paint, a new garage door, a new cement walkway to the front entrance, a resealed driveway, and a refreshed deck. The roof was replaced approximately 8 or 9 years ago, while the kitchen countertops and appliances are about 6 years old.

Outside, the large deck and patio create inviting spaces for enjoying the generous backyard. The full unfinished basement adds even more potential, including a wood-burning fireplace and plenty of room to dream up whatever comes next.

With its distinctive architecture, generous spaces, one-acre setting, and mix of vintage character and recent updates, this is a home with personality. Bring your vision, your plants, your books, your projects, or whatever makes a house feel like yours. The cottage-core daydream is already here. It just needs its next chapter.
