potential for its next owner.

The farmhouse reflects the charm of an earlier era and presents an opportunity for someone with vision to restore and reimagine a home with a story to tell. While the home will require substantial renovation, its setting and the acreage surrounding it create an opportunity that extends far beyond the home itself. Additional outbuildings further contribute to the property's character and heritage.

The 66.82 acres feature rolling terrain, a blend of open and wooded areas, and scenic mountain views from select locations. With two existing entrances from Paddle Creek Road, multiple potential building sites, and public water and electricity available, the property offers exceptional flexibility for a variety of uses. Whether you envision restoring the farmhouse, creating a private estate, establishing a family compound, pursuing agricultural interests, or simply enjoying the space and privacy of owning substantial acreage, the possibilities are extensive.

Properties offering this combination of location, acreage, and history are increasingly difficult to find. Conveniently located in the Bristol area, this is a rare opportunity to bring your vision to life on 66.82 acres along one of the area's desirable roads.
