Description

Step Back in Time--With All the Modern Comforts

Tucked away on 5.25 surveyed acres within the Cherokee National Forest, you'll find not one, but two beautifully reconstructed antique log cabins offering peace, privacy, and timeless character.

The main cabin, dating back to 1807, features five spacious rooms and comes fully furnished. Its cathedral-ceiling kitchen includes a cooktop, microwave, dishwasher, and access to a large deck overlooking the woods. The raised living room centers around a gorgeous stone fireplace complete with a forged cooking crane--a true piece of early American history.

The main-level bedroom offers a cedar-lined closet with Closet Maid organization, a half bath, and washer/dryer hookups. There's also a full bath with a jetted tub/shower. Upstairs, a cozy loft bedroom hideaway includes another cedar-lined walk-in closet. All four main rooms feature beautiful wood floors, while the glassed-in porch is heated/cooled and finished with ceramic tile--perfect for year-round relaxation.

Enjoy rustic charm with modern amenities

A second 800 sq. ft. log cabin with electricity and partial insulation offers endless potential as a guesthouse, studio, or workshop, complete with a double carport. There is a brook running along the property that completes the serene setting.

Recent updates (2018) include metal roofs on both cabins and the spring house, commercial gutters, new tilt windows, two exterior doors, and reinforced carport supports.

With Margarette Falls and hiking trails within walking distance, and abundant wildlife--from hummingbirds to deer--this is the perfect mountain retreat for those seeking tranquility and history in one unforgettable property.
