Description

Coffee on the front porch, a level yard that's easy to keep up, and an interstate on-ramp and shopping close by. This 1942 bungalow keeps things simple and easy on the budget.

Inside, everything is on one level. Hardwood floors run through the home, and a gas log fireplace makes it feel like home on cold nights. The eat-in kitchen is set up for everyday meals. Both bedrooms are spacious and the bathroom has new tile shower walls.

At the back, a bonus room with its own laundry space can be a home office, craft room, or flex space. Out the back door is a private patio, good for grilling or a quiet evening outside.

The detached one-car garage works well as a workshop, and the loft above it gives you extra storage. There's also an outbuilding behind the garage, attic access, and a partial basement with a concrete floor and its own outside entrance.
